Are accident and theft claims on the rise? Organized criminals are attacking rental fleets internally and externally. AAIR utilizes fraud detection procedures to identify fraud activities and implements detection systems to better protect businesses and consumers from financial and asset losses. AAIR will Communicate, Investigate, and Recover insured assets to reduce claims and reduce risk. Most rental car companies are reactive; the investigation starts one or more months after the rental period. By that time, many assets have been stolen, shipped, sold, auctioned by impounds and manipulated. We work with your clients to engineer strategies and that recognize the danger immediately which allows for quick recovery. We recognize that International airport rental locations are especially under assault. Since 2019, Covid has placed a strain on asset retention. Let AAIR protect your customers and reduce claims.

In the last four months, our team's methods secured the return or recovery of more than $5mil in assets, or 250+ vehicles between North & South Carolina and Georgia alone, with an average turnaround time of 72hrs, with or without tracking.

Our investigators are knowledgeable and efficient. Whether a vehicle has been stolen or a 75 year-old, premium customer has forgotten to renew their contract, we have the expertise and flexibility that will secure the fleet and reduce liability to the claimant and insurance company.

Working in the field exposes the vulnerabilities in the industry. AAIR is efficient in all aspects of investigation, internally and customer-based. Our team has assisted in recoveries nationally: AVIS, BUDGET, PAYLESS, DOLLAR, THRIFT, ZIPCAR, FIREFLY and ENTERPRISE.

core strengths & values

OMNI- CHANNEL APPROACH EXHIBITING EMPATHY & COMPASSION BUT PRODUCTIVITY

AAIR's target audience for fraud detection is rental car companies experiencing a spike in the number of vehicles rented/stolen. Significant losses nationwide are the result of fraudulent identification and credit cards used at rental locations worldwide. International airport locations on the Eastern and Western coasts of the US are being targeted. Losses include automobile theft, and even in cases where the vehicle has been recovered, further investigation exposed the fraudulent activity after the rental period. In many cases, cars have been damaged, stripped, customized, and vehicle parts removed and/or exchanged. We specifically utilize an approach where we analyze new and active rental agreements, quickly assess, and recover assets in high-risk environments; and at the same time protecting your customers' patrons by ensuring their information is being used appropriately. Oftentimes, the victims of ID fraud have no idea their personal information has been compromised, in some cases for many months. AAIR is proud to provide a model and structure that forefront a productive operation while striving to be ethical and fair. Our investigators are familiar with the industry and are able to access situational needs quickly. Whether a customer is totally oblivious, or is a criminal manipulating the company, we deal with everything until the asset is recovered with minimal risk.

"Identity fraud has been on the rise for the past five years and also increased notably in 2021. The number of identity thefts reported to the Federal Trade Commission in 2021 was 22% higher than in 2020... ."

ADAPTIVITY & INNOVATION

AAIR's insurers of rental car locations under constant bombardment from organized crime groups. Airport locations with automated pickup/drop-off, high employee turnover, significant rental volume, and a large quantity of non-trackable vehicles. Automated services combined with seemingly high employee turnover leaves space for organized criminals to sneak in and take advantage. As we detect fraudulent activity, we instate best practices to better protect and insulate your insured.
